SITUATION SUMMARY

Hepatitis A Virus (HAV) Outbreak

On 10/03/17, Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. issued an emergency proclamation that allows the state to increase its supply of hepatitis A vaccines in order to control the current outbreak. Immunizations from the federal vaccine program have been distributed to at-risk populations in affected areas, but additional supplies are needed. This proclamation allows California Department of Public Health (CDPH) the authority to immediately purchase vaccines directly from manufacturers and distribute them to impacted communities. In addition, the Medical and Health Coordination Center (MHCC) is coordinating with the State Board of Pharmacy to develop a survey, which will be sent to all pharmacies to determine current inventory levels of adult hepatitis A vaccine.

The MHCC remains activated in response to a large HAV outbreak in California. The majority of patients in this outbreak report being homeless and/or using illicit drugs. The outbreak is being spread person-to-person and through contact with an environment contaminated by human feces. The primary strategies for outbreak control are vaccination and improving access to sanitation. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) notes that person-to-person transmission through close contact is the primary way people get HAV in the United States.

Los Angeles, San Diego and Santa Cruz Counties have declared local outbreak status. Outbreak associated cases have been confirmed in other California jurisdictions.

Zika Virus

The MHCC remains activated in response to Zika virus disease. CDPH and Emergency Medical Services Authority (EMSA) are currently the only Emergency Function 08 (EF 08) partners at the state level reporting on this activation.

The MHCC is coordinating with EF 08 partners, healthcare facilities and Local Health Departments (LHDs) to ensure responses to inquiries are timely and accurate. CDPH and EMSA Duty Officer Programs are monitoring Zika virus disease inquiries after business hours and communicating with the Regional Disaster Medical and Health Coordination (RDMHC) and the Medical Health Operational Area Coordination (MHOAC) Programs throughout California.

As of Friday, 10/27/17, there have been 608 travel-associated Zika virus infections in California. 11 new cases have been reported since the last situation report dated 10/19/17. CDPH centers and programs continue to monitor Zika virus disease and provide information to the MHCC related to their specific activities on a weekly basis.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- An early season Pacific storm system will be moving through northern California tonight through Monday bringing widespread precipitation.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

- <https://alerts-v2.weather.gov/counties/CA>

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Widespread rain at lower elevations Friday, and mountain snows increasing Friday night. Areas of gusty southwest winds ahead of the cold front moving through. High temperatures in the 50s, except 30s-40s in mountain locations.

 Moist and cooler period next several days ***

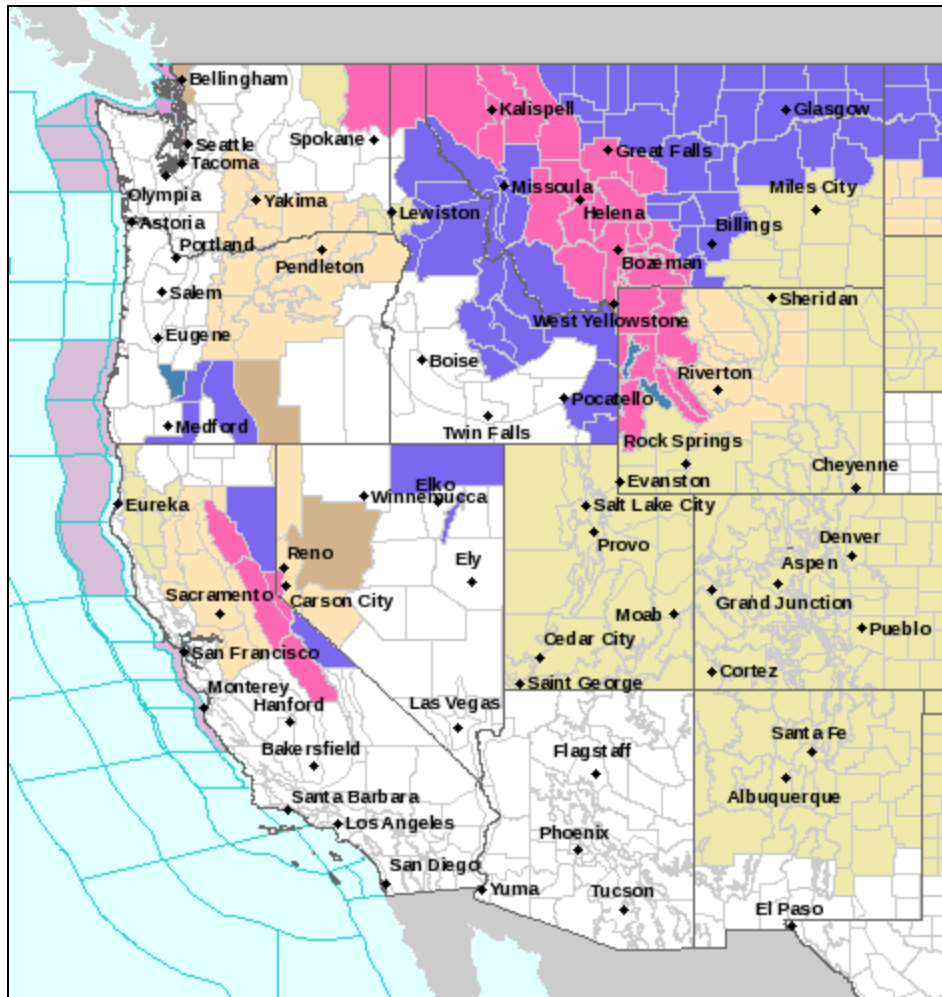

Unsettled weather, including higher humidity, cooler temperatures and periods of precipitation will affect the North Ops region through next week. The first in a series of Pacific troughs will move over the area today with some lingering effects in the form of precipitation across the south and east on Saturday. The second trough will skirt over the area Sunday into Sunday night and provide some lighter precipitation favoring the northern third or so. A third Pacific trough should affect the area Wednesday and Thursday. Much of Monday and Tuesday look to be the driest of the 7 day period at this time although if the midweek system were to speed up, then the day period on Tuesday could result in some precipitation. Weather models have come in a little drier with their precipitation results the next 48 to 72 hours although liquid water values up to 3.5 inches very possible across portions of the northern Sierra, especially west facing slopes. The main snow accumulation level will be above 5000 feet Friday night and Saturday. The second trough passage looks to be even cooler with lower snow levels. The third system appears to be warmer at this time. The stronger wind period looks to be today and this evening with general gusts between 25 to 35 mph and locally up to 45 mph. The stronger winds would favor the Sacramento Valley and eastern areas. Another round of stronger winds is expected ahead of the third system. The strongest wind speeds would be associated with a S to SW direction.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Light rain shower chances along the Central Coast Friday and increasing in the southern Sierra Friday night. Gusty southwest winds around 10 to 20 mph with gusts to 30 mph for mountain and desert locations. High temperatures in the 60s, except 30s and 40s in the southern Sierra, and 70s in the desert areas.

A Pacific trough over the West Coast will bring scattered showers at times through Monday, with less than a half inch of rainfall accumulation. However, the Central Sierra and its surrounding foothills will receive between 1 and 3 inches of rainfall. The snow level will be around 8,000 feet. Westerly winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the wind prone mountain and desert areas through Monday. Temperatures will be 5 to 10 degrees below normal through Monday, with mid 40s to mid 50s across the mountains and 60s to low 70s in the valleys. The trough will weaken causing temperatures to warm to near normal and humidity to lower a little Tuesday and Wednesday. The trough will strengthen once again bringing below normal temperatures and scattered showers with light rainfall totals to the area late next week. Strong westerly winds will also surface across the mountain ridges and desert passes once again late next week.
